

KSA Inbound Call Handling Instructions

1. Opening & Professionalism

- Greet the customer warmly and introduce yourself and the company. You get scored based on the Standard Tahaluf Greeting:

“Welcome to Tahaluf, this is “Your Name” How may I help (assist) you?”

- Practice active listening and show empathy in your tone. You get scored on Active Listening and Empathy separately

- Always listen carefully to avoid making the customer repeat themselves. This shows respect for their time and helps resolve issues faster.
- When a customer shares a complaint or negative experience, start with empathy-say something like: “We are sorry to hear that,” or “We understand your frustration, and I’ll do my best to help you.” This shows you care about their feelings and are committed to resolving the issue

- Maintain professionalism throughout the call. You get scored on Professionalism

2. Customer Focus & Understanding

- Identify the customer’s needs by asking clarifying questions when needed. You get scored on Needs Identification by correctly understanding what the customer is referring to and avoiding confusion.

- Focus on the customer, build rapport, and communicate clearly. You get scored on Communication, Building Rapport, and Customer Focus separately.

- communication: Communicate clearly by using simple, positive language, avoiding jargon, and confirming understanding by summarizing key points or asking if they need further clarification.
- Building rapport : Building rapport can be as simple as starting with a friendly, personal touch like “Hope your day is going well” or “How are you doing today?” This helps create a warm, human connection and makes the customer feel comfortable and valued right from the start. keep it genuine and brief to keep the conversation professional yet friendly.

- customer focus: customer focus means capturing and keeping the customer's attention during the interaction. To do this, start with a clear, engaging greeting, listen actively, and address their main concern quickly. Avoid distractions or long complex explanations so the customer feels heard and involved throughout the conversation.

3. Hold Procedures & Dead Air

- Always ask permission before placing a customer on hold, explain the reason, and state the expected duration. Then wait for their approval and thank them for holding when you are back. You get scored on Hold Procedures and if any one of the hold steps is missing you will lose the hold score.

Putting a customer on hold:

1. Ask permission politely and state the reason with a specific time:

"May I put the call on hold for 2 minutes to check the required information and get back to you, please?"

"Could you please hold the line for 2 minutes while I check the information?"

"Would you mind if I place the call on hold for 2 minutes to check the details and get back to you?"

2. Return within the promised time (2-3 minutes max). If it will take longer, ask again for permission to extend the hold time.

3. When back, thank the customer:

"Thank you for holding."

- Avoid dead air You get scored on Dead Air, its one of the parts that hold a heavy score so please be extra careful!

- Feel free to explain what you are doing to the customer and encourage small talk.

• If you need more than a few seconds, use the hold procedure.

4. Product Knowledge & Problem-Solving

- Demonstrate strong product knowledge and use systems efficiently. You get scored on the CS information that you provide so this measures your knowledge and navigation skills separately.

- Show confidence in your knowledge and use systems efficiently to find solutions.

- Be solution-oriented and escalate issues to the correct team when necessary.

5. Call Resolution & Follow-up

- Follow up with actions as promised. We score you here based on Fulfilling your promises, we check if emails or group posts were sent regarding their issue/request.

- You get scored on customer is satisfaction, Ensure the customer is satisfied by actively checking in before ending the interaction-ask if all their questions are answered or reassuring them that you will do your best to resolve their issue. This shows you care about their experience and helps prevent repeat contacts. Ending on a positive note leaves a strong impression.

- You get scored based on the standard Tahaluf closure, close the call politely using the standard Tahaluf closure:

“Thank you for contacting Tahaluf, Have a good (nice, great) day.”

- You get scored on following company policies as well.

6. Documentation

- Accurately document the call and any actions taken in the system. This section holds a big score value as well.
